

WHAT'S UP

Tanis commits her soulful and engaging voice to the planet in “Losing My Mind”.

Author: Labuvette – Date: 3 March 2016

Yes, Tanis is losing her mind, but it's for the planet. Feeling called upon to speak out for the environment, Tanis has released an inspiring first album with Blackout.

Tanis may be a new talent, but her multicultural background growing up across six different countries and her fluency in several languages lends her an incredible sense of maturity. Composer and singer from a young age, Tanis marvels us with the grace in which she performs “Losing My Mind”, an anxious song that hopes for a brighter future. Finger's crossed!

“Music is my way of expressing the words that I'm too timid to say out loud, the feelings I'm often afraid to show and the love that I can't express. Each song that I write contains a small piece of my life that I've never shared before. My music is the bridge that connects my internal world to my exterior reality.”-Tanis

